The impact of the Express Industry on the EU Economy

The European Express Association (EEA) would like to invite the European Institutions, particularly the European Commission, European Parliament, Permanent Representations to the EU and leaders in transport industry to discuss about the essential role of the express industry.

The EEA welcomes your participation in this interactive webinar with Moumen Hamdouch, European Commission, Head of Strategy, Directorate-General for Mobility and Transport (DG MOVE), who will highlight the Commission's policy priorities for the transport sector and express industry.

Since 2013, Moumen became Policy Adviser to Henrik Hololei, first in his capacity as Deputy Secretary General of the European Commission and then as Director General of DG MOVE. In November 2019, Moumen headed the transition team of the new Commissioner for Transport, Ms Vălean, assisting her to succeed her European Parliamentary hearing.

Both the EEA and Oxford Economics will present the key findings from the recent study on the impact of the Express Industry on the EU Economy, explaining the clear picture of the size, scope and direct and indirect impact of the express delivery sector in the European Union. The study reinforces the idea that the European express industry is a vital part of the European economy, through its scale as an employer and generator of economic activity, particularly through the way it facilitates intra-European and international trade, resulting in greater supply chain efficiency.

This webinar will include a speech by Stéphanie Meyer-Van Breukelen, Chair EEA, where she will share her unique insights into this important report for express industry. The key findings of the report will be presented by Rob Harbron, Associate Director at Oxford Economics, where he has led many high profile economic impact studies in the transport, aerospace and manufacturing sectors. This webinar will be moderated by Mark van der Horst, Director EU Affairs, UPS Europe.
